KMA Receives Tau Sigma Delta Silver Medal Award

Temple University's Tau Sigma Delta National Honor Society recently awarded KMA the Silver Medal Award for Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion in Design. Troy C. Leonard attended the May 5, 2022, graduation award ceremony to accept this wonderful award.

Each year, TSD generates a criterion for the Silver Medal award that focuses on a group of key components within the architectural practice that have current relevance to the profession. This year, the award criteria was built around diversity, equity, and inclusion in design and in the workplace, with a focus on five additional areas in its recognition of local professionals: leadership accountability, inclusive systems, external relationships, diverse talent, and a respectful climate.

KMA is proud to be a diverse team that reflects the clients and community we serve. The practice has continuously evolved since 1976, when we were one of the very first Black-owned architecture firms in the city. Our trailblazing heritage has prepared us to meet many challenges while inspiring differentiation, experimentation, and invention. Forty-six years after our founding, KMA continues to be a Minority Owned Business.
